U.S. foreign service officer Catherine Croft, who once served as a deputy to then-Special Envoy for Ukraine Kurt Volker, arrives to testify as part of the U.S. House of Representatives impeachment inquiry into U.S. President Trump. REUTERS

Impeachment testimony details lobbyist bid to get U.S. envoy to Ukraine fired

Yovanovitch allegedly described as 'Obama holdover.'

A Republican former congressman turned lobbyist repeatedly pushed for the dismissal of U.S. ambassador to Ukraine Marie Yovanovitch, an action later taken by President Donald Trump after he was urged to do so by his personal lawyer Rudy Giuliani, a U.S. diplomat said in testimony on Wednesday.

Catherine Croft and Christopher Anderson, Ukraine specialists at the State Department, became the latest current and former U.S. officials called as witnesses in the Democratic-led impeachment inquiry against the Republican president in the House of Representatives.

Croft, testifying after being subpoenaed, said she was a member of the National Security Council (NSC) staff at the White House from July 2017 to July 2018.

"During my time at the NSC, I received multiple calls from lobbyist Robert Livingston, who told me that Ambassador Yovanovitch should be fired. He characterized Ambassador Yovanovitch as an 'Obama holdover' and associated with George Soros," Croft said in her opening statement to lawmakers, posted online by the Washington Post.

Soros is a wealthy financier often assailed by conservatives and known for his support of liberal causes. Barack Obama was Trump's Democratic predecessor.

"It was not clear to me at the time — or now — at whose direction or at whose expense Mr. Livingston was seeking the removal of Ambassador Yovanovitch," Croft said.

The impeachment inquiry focuses on a July 25 telephone call in which Trump asked Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky to investigate Democratic political rival Joe Biden, a former U.S. vice president, and his son Hunter, who had served as a director for Ukrainian energy company Burisma. Trump has denied wrongdoing.

Trump removed Yovanovitch as ambassador in May. Giuliani has said he went to Trump and the State Department as part of his effort to have her removed from the post at a time when he was seeking to persuade Ukraine to open an investigation of Biden, a contender for the Democratic nomination to face Trump in the November 2020 U.S. election.

Croft's testimony showed that Livingston was yet another well-connected conservative who was advocating for Yovanovitch's ouster, including Trump's son, Donald Trump Jr., Giuliani and former Republican congressman Pete Sessions.

Lobbying disclosure filings show a connection between Livingston's firm and Giuliani. According to one filing, Republican former congressman Bob McEwen of Ohio, working as a consultant to the Livingston Group, introduced former Ukrainian Prime Minister Yulia Tymoshenko to Giuliani last December.

Other lobbying disclosures filed with the Justice Department showed that Livingston called Croft on May 17, 2018, on behalf of two clients, an association of Ukrainian metal producers and the government of the Democratic Republic of Congo.

Zelensky, a former comedian, won Ukraine's presidency in a landslide in April. Tymoshenko had also run but was eliminated in the first round of voting.

Livingston played a prominent role in the Republican-led impeachment of Democratic President Bill Clinton in the 1990s and was in line to become House speaker. But the Louisiana Republican quit the House in 1998, saying he could not lead the effort to impeach Clinton for lying about a sexual relationship with an intern because he himself had engaged in an extramarital affair.

Catherine Croft

His firm did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Croft said she told Fiona Hill, Trump's former top Russia adviser, and George Kent, a senior State Department Ukraine expert, about Livingston's efforts concerning Yovanovitch but was "not aware of any action that was taken in response."

Anderson, in his opening statement seen by Reuters, also mentioned Giuliani's actions. Before Zelensky's inauguration in May, Anderson said "my colleagues and I saw a tweet by Rudolph Giuliani" alleging that Ukraine's incoming leader "was surrounded by enemies of President Trump." Anderson said he sought to counter the "negative narrative" sparked by Yovanovitch's removal and Giuliani's statements.

Police find 12 migrants alive in truck in Belgium

2 Belgian police found 12 migrants alive in a refrigerated truck at a motorway parking area in northern Belgium on Wednesday after the driver alerted the authorities, a federal police spokeswoman said. The driver, who was transporting fruit and vegetables, called police after he found 12 adult men - 11 Syrians and one of Sudanese origin - in the truck on Wednesday morning after a stop for the night. Police took them to the Immigration Office in the city of Antwerp. All were in good health, police said. A spokeswoman for the federal police said the prosecutor's office in Antwerp had opened an investigation into the incident, which occurred on motorway E34 near the town of Turnhout. The investigation is to determine the planned route of the truck, how the migrants climbed on board and if they were trying to reach Britain.

Twitter to ban political ads starting November 22

4 Jack Dorsey, Twitter chief executive officer said Wednesday that the platform will ban all political advertising as of Nov. 22, with a fully elaborated policy promised by Nov. 15. This global ban will include "candidate ads" and "issue ads." The CEO described "issue ads" as a more clandestine way to circumvent overt politicking, while still pushing ideological agendas and allowing for targeted abuses of power.

In a lengthy statement, Dorsey enumerated a number of supporting arguments for the company decision, including highlighting the difference between consumer and political advertising, with the former lauded as effective and the latter as a dangerous way in which "to influence votes to affect the lives of millions." In summation, Dorsey stated, "We believe political message reach should be earned, not bought." HAZEL SHANGHOLI

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

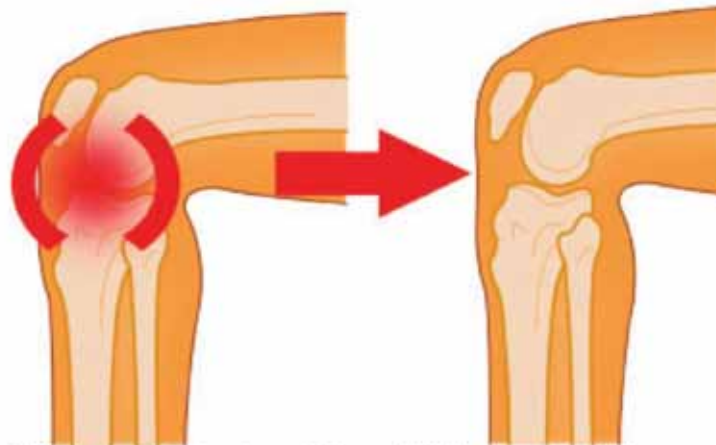

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

British PM Johnson gambles on an election to decide the fate of Brexit

The fate of Britain's departure from the European Union could be decided in a Dec. 12 election after Prime Minister Boris Johnson finally won parliamentary approval for a gamble that he hopes will break the deadlock over Brexit.

Johnson, who has failed to deliver on his "do or die" promise that Britain would leave the bloc on Oct. 31, secured the election agreement just hours after the EU granted a third delay to Brexit.

"At last the deadlock in parliament is broken. Brexit now has a chance to succeed."

Nigel Farage

The first Christmas election in Britain since 1923 will be one of the hardest to call in years. Brexit has variously fatigued, enthused and enraged swathes of voters while eroding loyalties to the two major parties.

When Johnson's predecessor, Theresa May, bet on an early election in 2017, she lost her slender majority in parliament - a failure that ultimately prevented her from ratifying her Brexit deal in parliament and sank her political career.

More voters switched between the two main parties at the 2017 election than in any ballot dating back to 1966, research by the British Election Study showed.

"It's time to unite the country and get Brexit done," Johnson told a meeting of Conservative lawmakers on Tuesday night shortly after securing the election to cheers from a parliament he has accused of stopping him from delivering the divorce.

The election result, due to be announced in the early hours of Friday the 13th, could decide the ultimate fate of Brexit after almost four years of almost continuous political commotion in London that has shocked both investors and allies.

Johnson, 55, hopes to win a majority to push through the last-minute Brexit deal he struck this month with the European Union while his main opponent, Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn, is pitching a socialist government and another EU referendum.

If no party wins conclusively, the future of Brexit will be thrown up in the air again with options ranging from a tumultuous no-deal exit to another referendum that could scupper the whole divorce.

A five-year flurry of two historic referendums - on Scottish independence in 2014 and Brexit in 2016 - and two national elections in 2015 and 2017 delivered often unexpected results that ushered in political crises.

The Conservatives are ahead of Labour by an average of about 10 percentage points in polls this month, indicating a majority in the 650-seat parliament for Johnson, though pollsters admit their models are imperfect with turnout a key variable.

The election pitches two of the most unconventional British politicians of recent years against each other. Both have been repeatedly written off by opponents and both offer starkly different visions for the world's fifth largest economy.

Corbyn, a 70-year-old campaigner who won the Labour leadership in 2015 against the odds, offers a radical socialist alternative to the Western capitalist consensus complete with sweeping nationalization and higher taxation on financiers.

"A Labour government will be on your side, while Boris Johnson's Conservatives - who think they're born to rule - will only look after the privileged few," Corbyn said.

Johnson, a New York-born former mayor of London who was hailed by the U.S. president as Britain's Donald Trump, has pledged to use Brexit to make the United Kingdom the most prosperous economy in Europe by 2050.

But both major parties will have to fight on at least three fronts: against each other while the Brexit Party led by Nigel Farage seeks to poach Brexit voters and the Liberal Democrats seek to win over opponents of Brexit.

"At last the deadlock in parliament is broken. Brexit now has a chance to succeed," Farage said.

The Scottish National Party, which opposes Brexit and will campaign on a pledge for another independence referendum for Scotland, is also hoping to retake seats lost to the Conservatives in 2017.

MTA investigating fallen debris on elevated tracks

After several incidents, the MTA has officially started investigating.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

The MTA on Wednesday began inspecting thousands of metal baskets under 60 miles of elevated subway tracks in response to dangerous incidents of falling debris.

MTA NYC Transit President Andy Byford said, "I take such incidents extremely seriously and have directed my team on an ongoing basis to take all necessary actions and expend all resources to prevent debris from falling from elevated structures. In addition to post-incident inspections, we are taking aggressive action to proactively prevent debris from dislodging and to catch it if it does come loose. Any of my team found to be derelict in maintaining or inspecting safety equipment, including elevated structure containment baskets, will be held fully accountable."

To help combat the falling debris, Byford launched a seven-day inspection blitz Wednesday, to hand-check each metal basket. Inspectors will check out all 325,000 baskets by hand.

Inspectors will check out all 325,000 baskets by hand.

Additionally, transit officials will be reviewing video footage of the elevated structures.

The inspections come after an incident Tuesday in which a 15-pound D-wedge (used for keeping spacing between the rail and guardrail even) came loose and fell from an A line. It was reported that the basket was not properly secured at the time. CBS reports that the wedge fell onto the back of a cab but did not harm anyone inside, just giving them a scare.

Prior to that incident, on Oct. 23, a bolt came loose on the N/W line near Queensboro Plaza. The MTA reported that the metal basket was misaligned and disciplinary actions have been taken.

In addition, netting has been added to elevated structures at four test sites. Those sites include:

New York set to become latest U.S. city to ban foie gras

New York City, often viewed as the fine dining capital of America, was poised on Wednesday to become the latest U.S. city to ban the sale of foie gras, sparking manufacturers to vow a court battle to overturn it.

The New York City Council was expected to pass a bill to "ban the sale or provision of certain force-fed poultry products."

Foie gras, French for "fatty liver," is a delicacy produced from the enlarged livers of ducks and geese that have been force-fed corn.

Animal rights groups contend that the force-feeding process is painful and gruesome.

"The council is banning a really cruel and inhumane practice," said Jeremy Unger, spokesman for Council Member Carina Rivera of Manhattan, who introduced the bill.

But the nation's largest maker of foie gras, Hudson Valley Foie Gras in

REUTERS

Ferndale, New York, located about 100 miles northwest of New York City, defended the practice it uses to make the luxury item.

"I can tell you we take proper care of the birds," said Hudson Valley manager Marcus Henley. He said the farm, which employs 400 people, makes foie gras "in conformity with humane animal management and in compliance with the laws of the state of New York."

The ban would take effect in three years, in a move meant to give farmers time to retool their businesses to focus on other products, Unger said.

But Henley said New York City represents about a third of his farm's revenues and rather than planning to adjust its business, he intends to head to court to seek to overturn it. There are three foie gras makers in the United States - Hudson Valley, La Belle Farms, both in Ferndale, and Au Bon Canard in Caledonia, Minnesota.

It was unclear how many restaurants and groceries would be affected by the ban.

"We don't have an exact number but roughly 1 percent of restaurants in New York City serve it," Unger said.

Foie gras bans passed elsewhere in the United States have had mixed results. Chicago's City Council approved a ban in 2006, only to repeal it two years later.

Iraq prime minister's fate in limbo as crowds of demonstrators swell

More than 250 people have been killed in four weeks of protests.

Iraq's most powerful politicians appeared to withhold support for Prime Minister Adel Abdul Mahdi on Wednesday, as anti-government protests swelled into the biggest mass demonstrations the country has seen since the fall of Saddam Hussein.

Protesters from across Iraq's sectarian and ethnic divides thronged the center of the capital Baghdad in a show of fury at the political class. While Abdul Mahdi's fate was not yet clear, demonstrators said removing him would not be enough.

After four weeks of protests in which more than 250 people have been killed, the past 24 hours saw the demonstrations swell to a previously unseen scale in the capital.

Middle class families with small children joined self-proclaimed "revolutionary" youths from poor neighborhoods to brave tear gas and barricades in Baghdad's Tahrir Square.

"No Moqtada, no Hadi," protesters chanted, denouncing what they saw as an effort by the leaders of parliament's two largest blocs — populist cleric Moqtada al-Sadr and militia leader Hadi al-Amiri — to cling to power behind the scenes with or without the prime minister they installed a year ago.

Sadr has demanded Abdul Mahdi call an early election. When the premier refused, Sadr called on Amiri, his main political rival, to help oust him.

Amiri issued a statement overnight that was initially seen as accepting Sadr's call to ditch Abdul Mahdi. But a day of silence followed, leaving the prime minister's fate in limbo.

"We will

Hadi al-Amiri

"We will work together to secure the interests of the Iraqi people and save the nation in accordance with the public good," Amiri had said in the overnight statement.

Many young women and older people joined the protests as they gained momentum and appeared safer. The mood was jubilant yet defiant, with many singing and dancing and a group of young men even playing dominos, in contrast with the tense situation earlier this week when scores were killed nationwide.

One wheelchair-bound man said he came with his two young granddaughters to support the protesters.

The protesters have drawn inspiration from a similar uprising in Lebanon, where pan-sectarian anti-government protests forced Prime Minister Saad Hariri to step down.

"We are staying and holding our ground. Our demand is not only to replace Adel Abdul Mahdi: we want the whole government uprooted," said Karar Saad, 20. "All of them are thieves."

Despite promising reforms and ordering a broad reshuffle of the cabinet, Abdul Mahdi has done little to address the demonstrators' complaints. Parliament passed measures on Monday including reduced salaries for officials, but protesters derided this as too little too late.

The security forces responded to the initial unrest in early October with a brutal crackdown, firing with live ammunition from rooftops into crowds. But if they hoped to intimidate the demonstrators, the tactic has backfired, inflaming passions. REUTERS

Synagogue attack prompts German crackdown on right-wing hate crime

People mourn outside the synagogue in Halle, Germany after two people were killed in a shooting. REUTERS

The German cabinet on Wednesday approved measures to fight right-wing political violence, including tougher rules on gun ownership and stricter monitoring of hate speech online, responding to a rise in hate crime by militant extremists.

Chancellor Angela Merkel's government has been under pressure to act after the killing of a pro-immigration politician in June and an attack on a synagogue and a kebab shop in Halle by an anti-Semitic gunman earlier this month, which left two dead.

Both crimes were carried out by right-wing militants, who were active on online platforms used by extremists to spread racist propaganda and make threats against politicians.

The new rules oblige online platforms and social media to inform security agencies and police about hate content.

If authorities suspect that crimes such as incitement have been committed the platforms are required to disclose the offender's IP address.

The government also wants to make it illegal to sell guns to members of extremist groups monitored by security agencies.

Other measures include providing more financial support to de-radicalization programs and groups that foster democracy and fight anti-Semitism.

The Jewish community welcomed the plan but said focusing on right-wing anti-Semitism won't end violence against Jews in a country still coming to terms with its Nazi past and which is witnessing the rise of the far-right Alternative for Germany (AfD) party which won almost a quarter of the vote in a regional election in the eastern state of Thuringia last Sunday.

"The main challenge is the fight against the boundless hate on the internet. The internet should not remain in a legal vacuum."

Andrea Lindholz

"Anti-Semitism comes from right-wing extremists, left-wing extremists, Islamists and from within German society," said Sig-mund Koenigsberg, of the Jewish community in Berlin.

He added: "Because anti-Semitism is so wide-ranging, we need a more comprehensive strategy. No one is born anti-Semitic. The road to anti-Semitism is long. So prevention is crucial."

The government has said around 90% of the 1,800 incidents recorded against Jews last year were committed by individuals espousing far-right views.

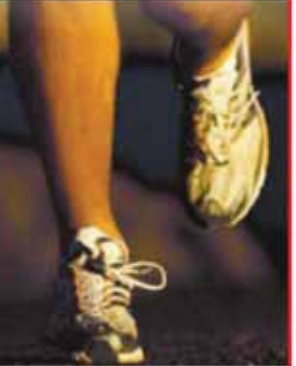

"Right-wing extremism, as well as Islamist terrorism, is today one of the biggest security threats facing Germany," said Andrea Lindholz, head of the home affairs committee in the Bundestag lower house. "The main challenge is the fight against the boundless hate on the internet. The internet should not remain in a legal vacuum."

Germany two years ago introduced laws allowing fines of up to 50 million euros ($55.57 million) on social media sites that fail to remove hate messages promptly. The new rules prompted Facebook to delete thousands of posts deemed as hate speech.

Germany's domestic intelligence agency estimates there are around 24,100 "right wing extremists" in Germany, about half of whom are potentially violent. REUTERS

Why 'Terminator: Dark Fate' needed to wipe the slate clean

Release is a sequel to 1991 film.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

While both "The Terminator" and "Terminator 2: Judgment Day" are rightfully regarded as sci-fi classics, in the 28 years since the latter's release, its three subsequent sequels have each failed to come close to making the same impact or receiving similar acclaim.

But, following the success of his directorial debut "Deadpool," Tim Miller was certain he could return the franchise to its former glories. "I felt like there was an interesting story still to be told," Miller tells Metro. "I just felt like the universe hadn't been set right with the follow-ups. We knew we needed to wipe the slate clean."

That meant Miller decided to ignore everything after "Judgment Day," while James Cameron, who returns to the series as a producer on "Dark Fate," set about convincing Linda Hamilton to return as Sarah Connor. After several weeks of deliberating, she finally agreed to do so, with Miller admitting that's when "everything just funneled into this perfect kind of story."

"It is Sarah's story," says Miller. "And the most interesting version of Sarah is someone who is suffering under the terrible burden of tragedy and the decisions she made. Because all she did really was kick the can down the road, and as a result more people actually died."

This time around, rather than saving her son John, Sarah joins up with Grace (Mackenzie Davis) to protect Dani (Natalia Reyes), who is being hunted by the new and improved Terminator Rev-9 (Gabriel Luna). This takes them from Mexico City into the United States, where they look to find a heavily accented accomplice that Sarah has an awful lot of history with.

Davis believes that there would be no "justification" to do this movie if Hamilton wasn't involved, with her presence immediately making it feel much "more relevant."

"People are genuinely interested in how Sarah Connor has lived her life," remarks Davis. "What she has done with all of her ferocity and trauma and what she has been up to, whether she has settled and is in peace or if she is as angry as she was. That was such an interesting story to tell. So we wanted to take care of this big responsibility and do it justice for Linda."

Reyes echoes these sentiments, insisting that having Hamilton back is "the true stamp that makes this a 'Terminator' movie," especially as she is just as "strong, smart, and beautiful," but also "wiser."

While Hamilton's comeback immediately added extra emotional heft to "Dark Fate," it was still Miller's responsibility, alongside its writers David S. Goyer, Justin Rhodes and Billy Ray, to create a story that warranted her return, while entertaining the millions of fans of the franchise, too.

Luckily, Miller had a foolproof plan when it came to including ideas. "I literally would imagine myself reading it on the internet, and whether I would go, 'Oh that's bullshit!'" Or, 'Oh that's cool!'"

At the same time the world's reliance on technology has only increased the relevance and importance of the franchise.

"All of the 'Terminators' are trying to be a warning call," declares Davis. "It is escapist, but it should be confrontational. We are not dealing with the distant future. This is the present day, and it is horrifying. All of the abuses of technology are literally happening today. I think it is an enormous part of the fabric of these movies. But this feels more prescient because it is 2019."

"We can't stop technology. Or fight it," adds Reyes. "But we need to think about how we relate to it and protect some privacy and humanity."

"Terminator: Dark Fate" will be released in theaters on Nov. 1.

Aries Do your research and prepare to combat any opposition you encounter while trying to negotiate a deal.

Libra Be open to new ideas. Refuse to let someone talk you into taking on responsibilities that don't belong to you.

Taurus Don't feel that you must settle for less than what you want. Lay your cards on the table and be open to suggestions.

Scorpio Partnerships require effort. Discuss plans about life/work balance with a loved one or colleague. Romance will enhance your day.

Gemini Put more thought, effort and time into a significant relationship. Listen carefully and verify others' intentions. If you act on an assumption, you will end up being disappointed.

Sagittarius Take action. It's what you do, not what you say, that counts. Live up to your word, don't make excuses and avoid criticism.

Cancer Share your interests and concerns. Be a part of the solution, not part of the problem. Someone you meet will be impressed with what you have to say and offer.

Capricorn A change at home will help you allocate your time more effectively. Don't take risks, and be sure to leave yourself enough space to compensate for unexpected delays.

Leo Be willing to work with the changes going on around you. If you make a fuss, it will only delay the inevitable.

Aquarius Do your own thing. If you let someone dictate what you can and cannot do, you will end up accomplishing little. Seek out people you have successfully worked with in the past.

Virgo Your interests and knowledge will expand, adding to your experience and your ability to bring about positive change. Don't let someone using emotional tactics stand in your way.

Pisces Discuss proposals and negotiate deals. If you offer only what's doable and ask for fair compensation, everything will unfold smoothly. Indulgent behavior should be avoided, regardless of the circumstances. EUGENIA LAST

Everything you need to know about the Village Halloween Parade

New Yorkers are gearing up for this year's frightfully fun festivities. METRO STAFF

Things are about to get a little spooky on the streets of the Big Apple. Back for its 46th year of delighting the city's ghosts, goblins and ghouls, the annual Village Halloween Parade is set to return for another round of frightening fun. Here's everything you need to know about this year's celebration.

What is the Village Halloween Parade?

If you haven't been to the parade before, it's quite the treat. The festivities are perhaps the best Halloween party in the city, as tens of thousands of costumed revelers take to the streets to show off their love for the holiday. The parade is always a good time, as artists, dancers, musicians and anyone who just wants to party all join together for an unforgettable evening of Halloween fun. This year, Zohra, The Giant Spider and creator Master Puppeteer Basil Twist serve as grand marshals for the parade and will lead the way through the streets of

New York.

When is it, where is it and how can I take part?

As per tradition, the parade takes place on Halloween proper, which falls on a Thursday this year. People who want to march in the parade must be in costume and can line up on 6th Avenue at Canal Street beginning at 6:30 p.m. The parade is set to take off at 7 p.m. and last through 10:30 p.m.

While the parade is free to take part in, for $35, fans can be part of the "Wild Thing" special section, as long as they also wear the proper themed costumes. Tickets include access to a secret entry point featuring early admission and no lines, an in-parade party that comes complete with a DJ and soundtrack, plus the chance to appear during televised coverage. Following the parade, the official after party will be held at Webster Hall.

How can I watch?

Check out the parade live from any point between 6th Avenue North of Spring Street and 16th Street. The festivities will be broadcast live on NY1 between 8 and 10 p.m.

Jonathan Toubin let's us inside his Haunted Holiday Hop

New York's favorite party starter brings the ultimate Halloween bash to the Knockdown Center.

patrick.king@metro.us

As children, Halloween was a chance to put on a disguise and band together with your friends and head out into the night in pursuit of candy as someone else. Things change as you get older, but only slightly. Halloween is still about escapism, no matter how old you are. The famed DJ and NYC party-starter, Jonathan Toubin, understands this. For years, he has been throwing his New York Night Train events around the city, and around the world, with dance nights that focus on his impeccable knowledge of old-school and obscure rock and roll and soul nuggets. As these parties have become bigger, he has been able to book nights that combine his DJing, fun and inclusive dance competitions, as well as some of the best garage rock bands and soul acts. This Halloween, he is returning to the massive Knockdown Center in Queens for his annual Haunted Halloween Hop which will include headliners The Make-Up, Quintron & Miss Pussycat, and Protex. I caught up with Toubin over email to ask him about this year's festivities.

This year's Halloween Haunted Hop is one of the biggest parties you have ever put on. What has it been like booking all of the bands and coordinating all of the events for the night?

The booking is never too hard because I include my talented friends almost exclusively and the only strangers have been the two artists my friend Todd O-Phonic Todd has helped me book - Roky Erickson or Protex. Unlike a lot of other events, I don't have room to fit all of the acts I want! The schedule fills up so quickly and I have to say "no" way more than "yes." The biggest issues are logistical as I expand it every year. I want every room to run like clockwork so people can count on seeing what they want at an exact time and moving on to the next thing they want to witness.

The bands this year are absolutely perfect for the festivities: The Make-Up, Quintron & Miss Pussycat, and Irish punk-legends Protex. When booking bands, do you approach it the same way you would approach making the perfect Halloween playlist?

It depends! Definitely last year's headliner Roky Erickson was my ideal live Halloween artist. This year Protex was looking for an NYC gig on Halloween and Quintron & Miss Pussycat, who often do their own thing in New Orleans, also reached out about the possibility of a New York show that night. I thought that two headliners for the main stage were sufficient but I was talking to The Make-Up about doing a big NYC return show and this came up, and they're old good friends with Quintron & Miss Pussycat and Ian [Svenonius, of The Make-Up] has played the party many times over the years, so now we have three headliners! Though the bill didn't make so much sense to me stylistically at first, when you add it to the 12 local bands in the side room and the performance stage with Joe Coleman and King Khan, etc., it all mixes together on a cultural level in its organic variety.

You have been doing Night Train events with the legendary Ian Svenonius of Nation of Ulysses, The Make-Up and countless other bands for a while now. How did that relationship first start? I'd imagine getting some Gospel Yeh-

If you go:

The Knockdown Center, 52-19 Flushing Ave., Queens. Tickets $15-$30. <https://knockdowncenter>

Yeh was a dream billing for this night.

I met Ian in Austin, Texas in the early 1990s when Nation of Ulysses came to a very raw underground all-ages space my friends ran and lived in called the Cavity Club. Maybe around 1991? A mutual friend of ours, Larry from the band Victim's Family, couldn't get out of a graveyard shift at a bakery, so he asked me to approach Ian and tell him he was stuck at work but sends his regards. When I passed the message to Ian, he said "What bakery?" and the band, Tim Kerr of The Big Boys and I turned up to surprise Larry at work. Years later we were reacquainted on the East Coast and Ian was the DJ at the first-ever New York Night Train party. Kid Congo's record release at Tonic. A few months later Ian asked me to put on what were the first of over 2600 New York Night Train dance parties - for him and Calvin Johnson. A lot of people don't know but Ian is also one of the first to take old soul and funk 45s out of the collector, mod, northern soul, hip hop or rare groove DJ world, and bring it into our shared post-hardcore underground rock culture. His work inspired a number of people from different coast to coast scenes to become DJs and throw soul parties in the 1990s. It only lasted half a cigarette but was a huge inspiration for me years later. I was never a fan of DJs and for me, Ian was the first one I thought was cool and made me have a bit of admiration for the job.

8 SMOKING COCKTAILS PERFECT FOR HALLOWEEN

I cannot believe Halloween is this week!

Halloween is today, and what better way to celebrate than with some spooky and smoky cocktails. This week, BOOze and Brews is all about cocktails that will get you in the spirit of Halloween.

When I think about Halloween drinks, I think bright colors, and I think smoking items, like a potion class. So I've rounded up a few cocktails that totally belong at a school for witches and wizards. Not only do these drinks taste good, but they are also social-media friendly. If you're looking for a smoking good cocktail this Halloween, here are eight cocktails that smoke:

Beetlejuice, Beetlejuice, Beetlejuice at Ocean Prime

This spooky special is a partnership between BEETLEJUICE and Ocean Prime. The drink is only available during October and is inspired by its namesake. The drink features melon liqueur, rum, lime juice, pineapple juice and Orgeat Syrup. The cocktail is tropical and creamy with a fun, smoky effect.

$18, Monday - Thursday, 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., Friday, 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., Saturday, 5 p.m. to 10 p.m., Sunday, 5 p.m. to 9 p.m., 123 West 52nd Street

Smoking Rye Old Fashioned at Fine & Rare

There's nothing quite like an old fashioned. It's a classic, and throwing smoke into the mix gives the classic a modern edge. With this old fashioned, you have some choices to make; you can choose Westland Single Malt or Knob Creek Rye. The drink will also include demerara, orange oil and Angostura bitters. Last but certainly not least, you can actually choose your smoke. The options are Pecan, Applewood, Cherrywood, Hickory, Maple and Bourbon oak. The possibilities are endless.

$20, Sunday - Tuesday, 5 p.m. to 12 a.m., Wednesday - Thursday, 5 p.m. to 1 a.m., Friday - Saturday, 5 p.m. to 2 a.m., 9 East 37th Street

Purple Noon at 701 West

This cocktail looks like a scientific experiment gone right ... or blood. This vibrant red cocktail was inspired by a moonshine drink. The drink has rum, moonshine, black current and smoked beet in it. The smoke in this comes from dry ice. The drink has a smoky note to it due to the roasted beets added to it.

$26, Monday - Thursday, 4:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m., Friday - Saturday, 4:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., Sunday 4:30 p.m. to 12:00 a.m., 20 Times Square, 701 7th Ave, W 47th Street

Cold Brew Black Russian at Strip House

If you prefer caffeine to Halloween candy, this is your dream drink. This caffeinated cocktail includes Tito's Handmade Vodka, demerara syrup, cold brew coffee and black cherry. It's a fun and festive update to a black Russian and the coffee adds a slight edge to the drink, but the other ingredients have a subtle sweetness making it a dream for cocktail lovers.

$18, hours vary per location, 13 East 12th Street or 15 West 44th Street

Saeng-Gang Mist at Windrose

If you prefer to pretend you're at a school of witchcraft and wizardry, the Saeng-gang mist is a great match for you. This drink looks like you're having a magical, bubbling brew. The cocktail includes sherry, vermouth, ginger, cinnamon, prosecco and ginger-spiced tea smoke. This drink tastes like a sweeter tea with a savory hint, to balance it out.

$15, Sunday - Wednesday, 5 p.m. to 11 p.m., Thursday - Saturday, 5 p.m. to 12 a.m., 39 Downing Street

The Stormy Night at Aviary

This cocktail is perfect for exactly what it sounds like: a stormy night or just a day when you're dreaming of summer. This drink includes rum, lime juice, ginger snow and liquid nitrogen smoke. This cocktail is refreshing and perfect for the 'gram.

$25, Sunday - Thursday, 5 p.m. to 11:30 p.m., Friday - Saturday, 5 p.m. to 12 a.m., 80 Columbus Circle at 60th Street

Ophelia's Ascension at Ophelia Lounge NYC

This drink is great for those who like to be a little extra when it comes to a presentation. This drink includes mezcal infused with smoked Jamaican peppers, makers mark, palm sugar, aromatic bitters, cedar smoke, activated charcoal and citrus. This drink is inspired by Hamlet's Ophelia using the mezcal and bourbon as leading flavors.

$17, Sunday - Wednesday, 5 p.m. to 12 a.m., Thursday - Saturday, 5 p.m. to 2 a.m., 3 Mitchell Place

Ode to Mullica at The Cauldron NYC

If you want to travel to a world full of magicians this Halloween, the Ode to Mullica is the perfect drink for you. The cocktail is an ode to a famous magician who was famous for making lit cigarettes disappear and reappear. The drink has rye whiskey, maple and allspice dram. This cocktail promises to be smoky, spiced, slightly sweet and of course, boozy.

$14, Sunday - Thursday, 11:30 a.m. to 11 p.m., Friday - Saturday, 11:30 a.m. to 12 a.m., 47 Stone Street

'Dracula's house' is illuminated for Halloween

The Whitby Abbey lights up

The historic Whitby Abbey in England will be illuminated during the Halloween Week from October 25 to November 2. Its visitors will be able to experience the site after dark and wander through the dramatic ruins of the so-called Dracula's house. New for this year's event are the Wicked Witches of Whitby, a coven of witches who will haunt the site throughout the evening.

OPINION

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno

If you thought the New York Jets' season couldn't get any worse following a 1-6 start, you were wrong.

The NFL trade deadline on Tuesday brought a whole new hash of drama to the table as star safety Jamal Adams — along with running back Le'Veon Bell — saw their names crop up in talks.

General manager Joe Douglas opted not to pull the trigger on any blockbuster deal, though he did admit that there were offers on the table.

"We fielded a lot of calls on a lot of players," Douglas said. "One thing I will say on the players that leaked out today, those weren't players we were shopping. But what I was taught, when a team calls you should always listen to what they have to say."

Needless to say, it rubbed Adams the wrong way.

Now things are getting awkward.

"At the end of the week last week, I sat down with the GM and

[head coach Adam] Gase and told them I want to be here in New York," Adams wrote on his Twitter. "I was told yesterday by my agent that the GM then went behind my back and shopped me around to teams, even after I asked him to keep me here! Crazy business."

Listening to offers and actively shopping a player are two completely separate things.

As much as Jets fans love Adams and see him as a captain of the defense or a face of the franchise, Douglas has a rebuild to pull off and a mess left by Mike Maccagnan to clean up.

A safety — no matter how good — isn't fixing things.

Douglas maintained a high price for Adams, knowing his worth, as he asked the Dallas Cowboys for at least a first-round and two second-round picks, per the NFL Network.

That's the kind of deal that would allow Douglas to accrue the capital needed to rebuild his sieve-like offensive line to protect the franchise golden boy in second-year quarterback Sam Darnold.

While Douglas didn't necessarily do anything wrong, he should step up and speak to Adams in order to clear up any misunderstandings.

The last thing the Jets need is a brooding star adding to the noise during a lost season.

Which is why Gase's comments on Wednesday were so peculiar.

When asked how he's handled the miserable start, Gase said that it's just "a normal NFL season. Just the results haven't been there."

So losing your franchise quarterback to mono, cutting a veteran offensive lineman because he had surgery without team consent, trading the No. 6 pick of the 2015 draft to the Giants, having your star safety publically rip the GM and having an offense that has scored just seven touchdowns in seven games is normal.

Good to know.

Would you like to know what the icing on top of this rotten cake would be? Losing to the winless Miami Dolphins on Sunday.

Maybe it's best if Jets fans go into hibernation for the time being. We'll wake you up when (if) it gets better.

Kids get it done for Rangers

Tuesday night's win over Tampa further proves it: Let the kids play.

JOE PANTORNO
joe.pantorno@metro.us

A bunch of kids at Madison Square Garden beat the Tampa Bay Lightning on Tuesday night. And I'm not using that term as some sort of insult.

The New York Rangers picked up their fourth win of the season against a Lightning team expected by many to represent the Eastern Conference in the Stanley Cup Final this season to quickly erase the memories of a 7-4 Sunday beatdown at the hands of the Boston Bruins.

While the Rangers were considered to be one of the most improved teams in the East after an offseason that brought in Artemi Panarin, Jacob Trouba and Adam Fox, this is still a team amid a rebuild. So those illusions of grandeur that include the postseason in 2019-20 might be a bit premature.

The Rangers are still full of holes. Their depth down the middle is suspect and their defense, while improved, still isn't doing veteran goaltender Henrik Lundqvist many favors.

Tuesday night, however, provided a promising glimpse that the Rangers are going to be for real soon.

But for that to happen, head coach David Quinn — who was given the Rangers job in part because of his ability to develop young players — has to let the kids discover their respective games through their playmaking abilities rather than reinvent their game.

Filip Chytil scored in his first game back with the Rangers. GETTY IMAGES

It didn't look like that was the case as the second-year coach quickly drew the ire of the Blueshirt faithful after Sunday's loss to the Bruins.

"Skill certainly is a huge component of this game, but if you have no battle in you, I don't care how skilled you are — you're not going to be productive," Quinn said. "This game is all about what can you do when someone's trying to stop you from doing it."

On Tuesday night, the kids not only answered the call, but they were able to play their game. The results were glowing.

No. 2 overall pick and 18-year-old Kaapo Kakko played one of his best games of the season on the third line alongside 21-year-old Brett Howden and 23-year-old Brendan Lemieux. Kakko scored his second goal of the season to get the Rangers on the board.

Filip Chytil, who was called up from AHL Hartford, scored what proved to be the game-winning tally with a nifty one-handed redirection past last year's Vezina Trophy winner, Andrei Vasilevskiy. He's only 20 and surely doesn't want to get back on the merry-go-round that would send him back to Connecticut.

Vasilevskiy was outdueling by a 23-year-old goaltender in Alexandar Georgiev, considered the heir apparent to Lundqvist once the legend decides to hang up his skates.

Defenseman Ryan Lindgren, 21, was called up with Chytil and replaced veteran blueliner Marc Staal, who was a healthy scratch for the first time in his 13-year career on Tuesday night.

Lindgren played a direct hand in New York's third goal of the night, springing Chris Kreider on a break that resulted in 21-year-old defenseman Adam Fox's first-career NHL goal.

The talent is there, but it's on Quinn to get this thing right and move in the right direction.

And yes, it could happen even with the Rangers missing the playoffs this season.

Growing pains are a part of life in the NHL.
